Crescent Brewing Company Enters Plea of Guilty to Violation of Law And Will Be Closed Down For One Year

OWNERS NOT IN COURT

Plea Entered By Counsel, Isaac W. Baum—All Beer In Plant Is Run Into Sewer. And All the Machinery Has Been Disconnected

Yesterday, through its counsel, the Crescent Brewing Company, of Washington, in which local men are interested, through its counsel, Isaac W. Baum, entered a plea of guilty to the unlawful manufacture of liquor, contrary to the provisions of the Volstead act.

It was sentenced by Judge Erwin Cummins to pay the costs of prosecution and a fine of $2,000. Being a corporation there could be no imprisonment. The sentence also carries with it a confiscation of the plant for a period of one year.

In connection with the raid on this plant all the manufactured product in the plant was seized. This, according to an inventory produced before the court, amounted to 850 barrels of "real beer," and 135 barrels of unfermented beer. This makes a total of almost 1,000 barrels of beer that was last week under order of court, allowed to run down the sewer.

It was destroyed under the direction of Sheriff Otto Luellen. This beer is estimated to have been worth about $50 a barrel. Consequently about $50,000 worth of stuff was poured out. It is understood that the cases in which the five employees of the plant are involved, they being arrested on the night of the raid by Corporal E. T. Cobee, of the state police, and County Detective David Creigh, will be disposed of later. It may be that these prosecutions will not be pushed, as these defendants are really only technically guilty. They were, at the time, working over, there being seized and taken by the officers, 22 barrels, which was later destroyed.

None of the company owners appeared in court. The formal plea was entered by Attorney Baum in the form of a resolution passed by the board of directors of the company on May 15, authorizing that action and the formal taking of the case before a grand jury. The company had also prior to this, authorized an agreement with the district attorney whereby the company waived any opposition to having the plant closed for a year.

All the beer that was in the plant, which was contained in ten steel vats, put in by this company to replace the old wooden vats of the former owners of the company, was run into the sewer, and all the machinery about the plant, including the de-alcoholizing plant, which was put in at a cost of several thousand dollars, and other valuable machinery, has all been disconnected. The present owners of the plant, when they began operations there, took over the entire property, building and equipment.

LICENSE OF EX-CHIEF FOR SLEUTH OPPOSED

Opposed, it is alleged, by the clubs the favorite drink now, and that it and those opposed to the Eighteenth constitutional amendment and the enforcement of the Volstead act, the application of J. L. Tressell, former chief of police of California, for a detective's license, is being bitterly fought.

Much interest has been shown in California and community church, and Professor Dean, of the over the matter and Mr. Tressell, it is understood, has the backing of the church and the best people of that secured were a private detective al-borough. Several witnesses were called yesterday morning in behalf of the detective, but on account of the length of the hearing and the fact that it was going to run into jury trials at 1 o'clock, the hearing was adjourned at 12 o'clock until next Monday at 10 o'clock. Both Judges James I. Brownson and Erwin Cummins are sitting.

The contention of those favoring that at the present time there is a lack of law enforcement, that the present administration in that borough is not doing its duty in having its officers enforce the laws. It is averred by witnesses that there exist what they term "club saloons," and that there are speakeasies which are allowed to run without any effort to close them up. One witness testified that "canned heat" seemed to be

LOCAL LADY IN AUTO ACCIDENT

H. McCullough of Belle Vernon, and his daughter Mrs. Erma Weaver, of Charleroi, had a narrow escape from death at 3:30 yesterday afternoon when the Ford coupe in which they were riding was struck by another Ford coming in the opposite direction. Mrs. Weaver, who had accompanied her father to Donora, where he received treatment from one of the town's physicians, was driving the car, and was unable to get out of the way of the Ford coming in the opposite direction and being driven at a high rate of speed. Harry Humphreys, driver of the second car, in which were Thomas Miller of Pleasant, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller.

At Turkey Hollow, a short distance below Monessen, the two cars collided. Two employees of the highway department were standing near at the time of the accident and said the driver, Humphreys, was intoxicated. A half-pint of whisky was taken from his clothing and turned over to the Monessen police. Mrs. Weaver suffered from shock, while the other occupants of the cars escaped uninjured. Both machines were badly damaged.

Girl Of Sixteen Missing-Fails To Go Home

Bertha Nederdoni, aged 16 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Nederdoni, 1142 Lincoln avenue, is missing since 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

H. J. Hahn, the butcher, as a domestic and has been in the habit, after her day's work was done, of returning to her home in the evening. However, according to Mr. Nederdoni, father of the lass, her home-coming was irregular; sometimes she would attend the movies, and would return to her home at 9, 10, 11, and had been known to remain out as late as 1 o'clock in the morning. According to the girl's father Bertha did not have "fellows," and he can ascribe no cause for her disappearance, other than she may have gone to Pittsburgh, where she has two girl friends, Pauline and Frances Kline, both of whom were former residents of Charleroi. A description of the missing girl has been sent to the Pittsburgh police, and if word of her whereabouts is not received today, Mr. Nederdoni, the father, will go to Pittsburgh and invoke the aid of the officers of the law there in instituting a search for her.

At the time of her disappearance, Bertha wore a blue cape, a checkered dress, a black straw hat, with yellow ribbons, and further embellished with yellow flowers. The girl is of Polish parentage, but being born in this country, speaks English fluently.

PURSUING NATURE YOUNG COUPLE MAY BE LOST

Mountain Lakes, N. J., June 3.—If Helen Cole, young sculptress who went into the New Jersey woods to catch a rabbit with her bare hands, and Charles Carter, who went with her, are alive and pursuing their back-to-nature adventure, no flickering camp fire betrayed their whereabouts last night.

State troopers and volunteers who have hunted the couple for 48 hours watched throughout the night from the Water tower atop the highest hill in these parts without catching a glimpse of a fire.

The girl and her escort who were at a house party here disappeared Saturday night, shortly after a discussion as to whether a man and woman could survive in the "wilds" with no equipment or tools other than their hands. They have not been heard from since.

WARRANT FOR A DOCTOR ACCUSED OF MURDER

Harrisburg, June 3.—A warrant charging Dr. C. Daley with the murder of Anna Mandek, who was found dead in his office, will be served on the doctor today in a Harrisburg hospital, where he is recovering from a bullet wound in his chest.

The warrant is in the hands of the district attorney, and was made on information given by County Detectors John H. Yoez. The hospital attaches refused to allow the warrant to be served on the injured man owing to the effect it would have upon him and probably cause a relapse.

FOLK REGRET THE DEATH OF SCHREYER

Frank Schreyer, aged 52, died at his home in Pittsburgh, yesterday morning, after a lingering illness.

Mr. Schreyer has been in poor health for some time past, but his condition was never regarded as serious. He was a former resident of Charleroi, coming here in 1902 from Milton, Pa., where he was born. He enjoyed a large acquaintance among the people of Charleroi as well as residents of the surrounding towns, who are deeply grieved to hear of his death. He is survived by his widow, Margaret Zellers Schreyer, two brothers, William of Cleveland, and Blaire, of New Jersey, and one sister, Mrs. Elsie Townsend, of Milton, Pa. Funeral services will be held from his late residence, 510 Ridgewood avenue, Pittsburgh, Thursday afternoon with interment in the Allegheny General cemetery.

BORO OFFICERS IN A RAID

New Eagle borough officers yesterday arrested two men and a woman when they raided a disorderly house at the corner of Main and Pine streets, that place. The trio, when the officers entered the house, were barricaded in one room, where they were later arrested and lodged in the borough jail of New Eagle.

They were said to have been intoxicated. A quart bottle of moonshine whiskey was also found in the room and confiscated. The woman is wellknown in the police circles of Monongahela and New Eagle, and hails from Dunfries, Carroll township, while one of the offenders is a Monongahela man, and the other a resident of Ma-town. Friends of the Monongahela man posted a forfeit for his appearance before New Eagle's burgess, and the other man and the woman are being held in the New Eagle jail for a hearing.

May Be Mellon Tax Plan Plank In The Republican Platform

Washington, June 3.—President Coolidge has made further tax reform one of the big issues of the coming campaign.

Dissatisfied with the present measure which he approved only because of its "advantages as a temporary relief and a temporary adjustment of business conditions," the president will renew the fight for enactment of a "sound permanent tax policy."

The steps in this campaign will be: 1—Insertion of a Mellon tax plank in the Republican platform.

2—A vigorous campaign for popular endorsement of this stand.

3—"A big stick" attitude toward the December session of congress, if he is elected on this platform in November.

The administration attitude toward the new law during the campaign will be that it was the best obtainable under the conditions. There will be no disposition to claim it as a Republican accomplishment.

Rather, it will be held up as a "horrible example" of what the country may expect unless a congress in harmony with the executive is returned to power next November. At the same time, the Mellon plan will be vigorously defended and its merits explained to the electorate.

The president's firm intention to continue the fight for the Mellon plan was clearly expressed in the final words of the statement he issued on signing the present bill. "A correction of its (the bill's) defects may be left to the next session of congress," he said. "I trust a bill less political and more truly economic may be passed at that time. To that end I shall bend all my energies."

Treasury department machinery today worked at top speed to assure the immediate effectiveness of the 25 percent tax reduction provision contained in the bill. Notices were dispatched to all collectors of internal revenue to prepare refunds to those who paid their full taxes in March. Instructions for cutting the remaining installments due on June 15 and December 15 were also sent out. On June 15 those who owe a quarterly installment on their tax bill will pay just half of what they would have had the new law not become effective. On September 15 and December 15, they will slice one-quarter off the original installments.

Goes to a Larger Field In Detroit, Mich. — Came Here Six Years Ago And Has Endured Himself to Community

BANQUET IN HIS HONOR

Elks Club Scene of Farewell Greetings to Priest, Attended By Visiting Pastors And Laymen — Good Work Here, Including Founding of Church

Rev. Father C. G. Diana, pastor of the Mother of Sorrow's church, was honor guest at a banquet held yesterday afternoon in the Elks club. The banquet was in charge of Rev. Emilio De Vivo of Connellsville, and Rev. C. Lio of McKees Rocks, and was planned as a farewell for Father Diana, who will leave in a short time for Detroit, Michigan, where he will start a new parish. Father Diana has served faithfully in Charleroi for the past six years, and it is with sincere regret that the people of the community see him going to new fields. Although it is his own wish that he sever his connections with the local church, the people of his parish and those with whom he has been associated with since his coming here, feel greatly the loss. Coming here six years ago, a total stranger in our midst, he has built up a friendship for himself with his people, that will never be forgotten. Four years ago he founded the St. Cajetan church of Monessen, and today it stands as among the leading churches of that place.

Covers were laid for the following: Rev. F. De Francisco of Pittsburgh, Rev. N. De Mito of New Castle, Rev. N. Fusco of New Kensington, Rev. A. De Santo of Mt. Pleasant, Rev. E. Parni of Ernest, Pa., Rev. L. Scarpacci of Oakmont, Rev. V. Giovannitti of Swissvale, Frank Maddas of Jeannette, a wealthy resident of that place, and one of Father Diana's most intimate friends; Mr. Scalisie of Monessen, John Stauch of New Kensington, James Kuntz of Jeannette, and Peter Calistri of Charleroi.

Preceding the banquet a short musical program was carried out. Vocal selections were pleasingly rendered by Miss Ruth High and Louis Brusa, accompanied on the piano by Miss L. Audrey Michener and Guy Michener.

Each priest present delivered a short address and expressed their sorrow in seeing Father Diana leave Charleroi. In answering, Father Diana said, "The only reason I am leaving Charleroi is that I have found in Detroit, a larger and better field for my activities." Telegrams were sent to

WEB TIGHTENS CASE OF ACCUSED YOUTHS

Chicago, June 3.—The state today drew a tightening web around Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, self-confessed slayers of 14-year old Robert Franks.

Efforts to place responsibility for additional crimes upon the two millionaires' sons were under way following their identification by Charles Ream, taxicab chauffeur, as the youths who attacked him last fall, room, police said.

Meantime the $15,000,000 defense retained by the wealthy parents was equally active. Defense attorneys today filed a motion for the court directing release of the two slayers by the police and state's attorney Crow and they were turned over to the sheriff and lodged in the county jail.

Both youths dropped their poses of bored frankness after their arrest, had talked to them.

"We respectfully decline to answer on advice of counsel," they replied in answer to all questions.

Tracy was slain November 25 and his body thrown into the streets. Police have been working on the case ever since on the theory he was killed by gland bandits, who were unable to perform an operation because of the terrible struggle he put up, and were forced to kill him.

Two automatic pistols similar to the weapon with which Tracy was shot, have been found in Leopold's room, police said.

The chauffeur was positive in his identification. "It's them," he shouted as the two slayers were led by him. Police today were attempting to discover evidence to confirm their suspicion that the two "intellectual murderers" also are the men who killed Louis Tracy, a fellow student with them in the University of Chicago, shot after he had been induced to enter a motor car near the Leopold home.

Max Carey's Timely Rap Wins From St. Louis Team

Max Carey's timely little tap over the left field wall in the eighth inning yesterday, yanked a ball game right out of the fire and completed a clean sweep of the series with the Cardinals who have played seven games at Forbes Field since the season opened but all of them have been won by the Pirates. The score of the final engagement in the series was 6 to 2.

Southpaw Eddie Dyer, who started the pitching for the visitors was poked by Ray Kremer, increased, but the pastime proceeded as on the hill for the home side and although Wilbur Cooper hauled the closing chapter, the left-handed ace was ordered to the contest because a pinchhitter had been needed. This bit of strategy served to turn apparent defeat into a Buccaneer triumph.

Sulac Given Credit For Restoring Health

Remarkable New Remedy Continues Its Early Record of Sensational Successes

Every mother who has seen her children suffer from indigestion, constipation and the other forms of stomach trouble that have compelled her to deny them the candy and sweets that other children thrive on will be interested in the following statement made by Mrs. Boyd Shick, of New Bethlehem:

"Ever since my boy was a baby he has been delicate and underweight. He has suffered constantly with his stomach, and constipation. Always took cold easily and nothing we ever did for him would make him gain weight or strength.

"Every time he would eat candy or sweets like the other kids he would have a terrible spell. We have bought all kinds of medicines for him but they did not help. So far he has taken four bottles of Sulac and it has worked wonders with him. Indigestion and constipation are all gone, he eats anything he wants and is gaining weight right along. I can truthfully state that Sulac has done the work for him. I have recommended it to friends of mine and I am glad to tell anyone that Sulac is the best remedy I know of for Stomach trouble and Constipation.

Sulac is a certified product of the Southern Laboratories of Atlanta, Georgia, and was brought to Charleroi only after our enterprising druggists had convinced themselves of its wonderful success in other territories. It is highly recommended for constipation, heart burn, indigestion, gastritis, loss of appetite, stomach catarrh and other forms of stomach trouble. You can try Sulac with absolutely no risk. Go to your druggist and buy six bottles. If after taking them you are not perfectly satisfied, ask for your money back. The manufacturers authorize your druggist to make this offer. Sulac is sold in Charleroi by Hennings' Drug Store and high class druggists almost everywhere. If you happen to live in a town where it cannot be had, write direct to the Southern Laboratories, 59 Eugenia Street, Atlanta, Ga., and it will be sent you postpaid at the regular price of $1.00 per bottle.

Missouri River Longest.
The Missouri river is not only the longest river in the United States, but it is the longest river in the world. Its actual length in miles is 4,194, and the Amazon, the next longest, which traverses Brazil in South America, is 3,644 miles. The Huang-Ho in China and the Murray in Australia rank next, with 3,000 miles each. The Mississippi, often thought of as the greatest of all rivers, is in reality only 2,616 miles long.

Largest Swimming Pool.
San Francisco has a new swimming pool which is said to be the largest in the world. It is 1,000 feet long and 100 feet wide, except for a center portion which is 300 feet wide to provide for a racing course across the pool. The depth varies from 3 to 14 feet and the cost of the pool was $30,000.

Quite Modern.
About 1882 Marcel Deprez, a French engineer and pioneer electrician, succeeded in transmitting electric power by telegraph wire between Munich and Miesbach, thirty-five miles. This is considered the first successful experiment in long-distance transmission.

Silver Map of World.
A silver map of the world, exhibited by the Royal Geographical Society, is said to be the best of four such maps in existence. It is a thin circular plate of silver, about three inches in diameter, and commemorates Drake's voyage around the world, 1577-1580.

When Brain Stops Growing.
There is no definite age at which the brain stops growing; it depends on how much and how wholesomely the brain is used. The more the brain is used (within reasonable health boundaries) the longer it grows. The limit might safely be placed at forty years.

Magic Healing as It
Is Practiced in India

It is hard in India to draw the line between folklore and religion. It is at best very misty. The magic powers seem to be stronger than the benignant, as is the case with most of the earlier faiths. A small instance or two must suffice.

We were sitting in the uplands, on some rocks covered with the glorious plants of the wild peony. These are lovely even when the flowers are gone and only the carved leaves remain and the massive seed vessels, full of seeds of pure rose embedded in milky white. They waved about us as I listened—and heard this tale and many more.

A memsahib had to discharge a servant, and he thought he owed his discharge to the butler. Soon after the butler complained of sores on his feet, small, raw holes, which would not get better, do what he would. At last he could not walk. The European doctor came, but could not help with all his medicines, dearly as they are prized by the natives. It was clear then to the butler that this was a case for the jagadgur—the wonder-worker. He came and put ointment on the feet. No result. It was then evident that his was a true case of jadu—magic. All the household assembled and jadu of the strongest was made and enlightenment besought. It came. The jagadgur said he must dig in the garden. Objection was made by the powers of the jagadgur.

and, unhesitating, the man chose a spot and dug. And lo! a lump of sun-baked clay roughly shaped in the image of a man, and into the feet were thrust large thorns inscribed with strange characters. The butler said the jadu was for him and that now his feet would immediately heal. They did.

I have heard of many cases like this. If this was faith-healing, I think one must also admit it was faith-burning.

Carrier Pigeon Acts
as Blackmailer's Aid

The legend of the carrier pigeon is one of gallantry, of romance, of suitor to beauty in distress, of information between lovers, of comfort to be leagued cities, of dauntless heart and cleaving wing through high adventure and deadly peril.

When one thinks of the praises and honors that have been won by that excellent bird ever since ancient man learned to turn its priceless accomplishment to his own service, one shudders at the thought of what our "practical" criminal classes would do to the homer's reputation if they found it possible to use the bird for nefarious purposes.

Fortunately there are obstacles to the use of homing pigeons as black-mail collectors, as a young man in Queens discovered to his cost. The bird that he, by way of a "practical joke," had caused to be delivered to a prosperous citizen of his acquaintance, with an anonymous demand for $1,000, was trailed by detectives to its purchaser and the blighted joker was arrested. If he had seen himself in imagination as the suddenly affluent pioneer of a new and winged get-rich-quick system, his dream was cruelly shattered. The bird with which he is charged with playing Fagin is held as a material witness against him, but without a stain on its own character.—New York Sun and Globe.

Music Due to Monk

This year marks the nine hundredth anniversary of the invention of the monk Guido of Arezzo of readable music, or at any rate of his revolutionary modification of the forms existing up to his time to the one now in general use.

Methods of writing music existed before he applied his mind to the subject, but it appears that to Guido we owe the staff and notation substantially as now familiar in written music. Once upon a time musical themes were transmitted from teacher to pupil and from generation to generation only by singing or playing them. When a tune passed out of fashion it was lost.

The teaching of music must have been difficult by contrast to what it became after Guido, who wrote it so that even without an expert instructor one could read it. Many minds must have addressed themselves to the problem of making it easily intelligible, but Guido's achievement is imperishable.—Detroit News.

Just a Musician

A beautiful girl had just finished singing "My Little Home in Devonshire." The hostess was surprised to see a man in a distant corner of the drawing room visibly affected. Tears stood in his eyes, and he shook his head. "Poor Mr. Smith!" she said, sympathetically. "I'm afraid that song recalled sad memories to you. Are you a Devonshire man?" "No, I'm just a musician."

At a Party

A man keeping open house and showing unmistakable signs of it was introduced to a new arrival, a Mr. Littlejohn.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Demijohn." "Not Demijohn," protested the other. "Littlejohn—little—little—little." "Little? No, no. We'll have a whole lot!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Church at Ft. Randall
Built by U. S. Soldiers

Fort Randall, South Dakota, has a church called a "mystery church." The church, concerning the erection of which all records were believed lost, was built in 1875. Its material was chalk rock, quarried out of the hills two miles south of the fort by soldiers of the first United States Infantry, stationed at the fort at that time.

The central portion of the building was intended for the use of the second I. O. O. F. lodge organized in the territory, and made up of soldiers. The east wing was the church and the west wing the post library. The building was used in this manner until the fort was abandoned in 1892.

The church was well furnished, all the pews being two and one-half-inch black walnut. There was a large organ and a large bell that could be heard for miles. All this was bought by the soldiers and citizens employed at the fort. The organ is still at the fort in the commanding officer's house, which is still standing intact. The walls of the old church building are still standing. Hundreds of names are written on the insides of the walls and carved on the outside.—Detroit News.

Golf Charts Teach Strokes and Standing Positions

To check the game of experienced golfers or to teach beginners, a set of six charts, printed with directions and illustrations showing correct standing positions, grips and strokes, and other fine points, has been devised. With them one may read a lesson in golf technique and follow it at the same time. Printed on heavy paper, the charts are to be placed on the floor. Standing over them with club in hand, the player is able to get the proper grip and position and execute the stroke in correct form. The diagrams afford a constant check and means of comparison for accuracy in every detail.

electron that are sent flying by an electric current. These particles, it is assumed, bump into each other, thus transmitting energy which is picked up as sound in the receiver. When a stream of radiant energy or particles strikes the antenna, it sets up a very weak current, which is transformed into sound or air waves in the receiving set.
The development of this theory, says Mr. Pfanstiel, has been very rapid and startling, and further investigation of the nature of these particles may explain the mechanism of direct communication and telepathy between minds. Also, through the new principle, wireless transmission of vision may become an accomplished fact.

Patching Auto Tops

When patching auto tops it is a good plan to place a board across the top bows under the covering to provide a firm surface on which to work. After the patch is applied a weight should be placed on it and left until the cement is dry, so that the patch will not curl up at the edges.

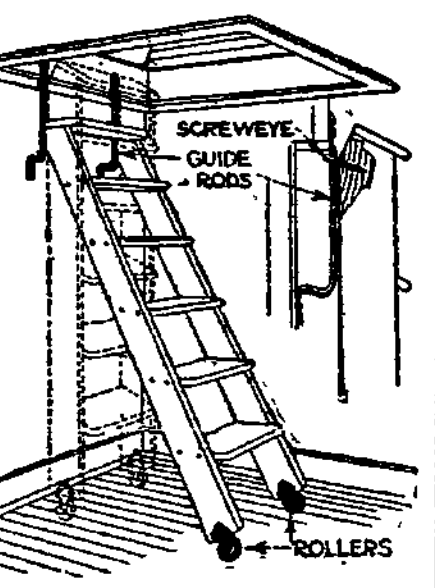

Serviceable Dandelion Hook

Occasionally the breaking off of a lobe of a hoe renders it unfit for further use and it is then necessary to throw away the hoe. However, a serviceable tool for the purpose of removing dandelions can easily be made from it. The shank of the broken hoe is straightened in line with the handle, and the blade is cut and filed to the shape shown, a V-shaped notch being cut in the end and filed to a sharp cutting edge. One of the points is cut to form a pulling hook, the throat of which is, of course, dull. A tool of this kind is very handy, as it can be used to cut the dandelions at their stems or pull them out entirely.

One third of the silk used in the United States is said to be artificial.

Portable Garret Step

In bungalows where limited space does not permit the use of a permanent "stepladder" of the kind shown, a "rolling" stepladder of the kind shown is convenient. It is made of 1 by 5-in. lumber, the risers being set between the sides at such an angle that they are perfectly horizontal when the ladder is pulled away from the wall. Two large screweyes fastened to the top of the ladder are used to hold it on the two vertical guide rods, which are permanently attached to the wall; the arrangement allows the ladder to be raised and lowered to the positions indicated. A couple of casters provided on the feet of the ladder facilitate the work of pulling it out from the wall and pushing it back again.

Can the Skin See, Is Query

That human skin has powers of vision which to a great extent have been lost through years of neglect, is the theory of a French scientist. A series of experiments conducted by him are said to support this belief. The sensitivity of the skin and underlying tissue with its intricate net of nerves is well known, but no one heretofore has supposed them to be capable of picking up light waves in a manner comparable with the process of seeing.

When Your Hacksaw Breaks

If the blade in the hacksaw breaks two or three inches from the frame, it can still be utilized. Hold the blade in the flame of a blow torch, or otherwise heat it, and while still warm drill a hole through it; this can be done with a hand drill. The blade can then be replaced in the adjustable saw frame, and it will be ready for use.

EXEMPTING WEALTH

Money can do much, even when some of the courts are concerned, but it is likely to make a pretty loud noise in the process and it can not keep people from talking. When Miss Abby Rockefeller was "up" for speeding in New York and no penalty followed the plea of guilty even for the second offense she got only a part of what she wanted. Her effort to hush up the matter and keep it from the public as well as her father, son of the venerable John D., failed completely and inevitable publicity followed. If she had been fined like anybody else, so common an occurrence would have been that it would not have been the circumstances there was no end of talk, indignation and criticism, the latter directed more toward the authorities who were induced to fail in their duty than toward an imperious and thoughtless girl. We may well believe that every reckless car driver in the country is now asking: "If Rockefeller can break the speed laws and 'get away with it,' why not I?" Why should wealth be exempted in a matter of this kind?
No doubt also there will in consequence be more "accidents," fatal or less serious, than there would have been otherwise. Already their number is appalling, and the country can ill afford any stimulation of the increase. "If speed slaughter is to be checked in city streets, says the New York World, "there must be severity and certainty in affixing penalties for illegal driving." The New York Times objects to the "blunder" of treating "the daughter of a very rich man in a way different from that in which others are treated." Obviously "blunder" is a pretty mild word in such a connection, particularly as applied to the authorities who allowed themselves to be tempted to ignore their plain duty.

When Ice Explodes

While gathering certain data on the Upper Missouri river in South Dakota, a scientist attached to one of the government bureaus reported a curious phenomenon that sometimes occurs in that region. It was in December. About noon one day there came to the scientist's ears a heavy report, audible for miles, that led him to remark that a blowout must have occurred on the river. On returning to the place where he had crossed in the morning he found an irregular hole, covering a space 100 feet square, in the solid ice, which averaged 26 inches in thickness. The theory is that such blowouts result from imprisoned air gradually accumulating in a favorable spot, where it is subjected to tremendous pressure by the force of the river current.

Arizona's Diamond Hoax

One of the greatest mining hoaxes ever perpetrated was the alleged discovery in 1872 of a diamond field in the northeastern part of the territory of Arizona.
Two men of the names of Arnold and Slack were supposed to be the discoverers, and magnificent-looking rough diamonds and rough rubies, which it is said they had picked up in the Arizona field were exhibited in San Francisco. A company with a capital of $10,000,000 was organized in San Francisco, and the list of stockholders included a number of large mining investors.
The fraud was exposed by Clarence King, United States geologist, who showed that the stones exhibited were from Africa and Brazil, and upon visiting the Arizona field, saw at once that it was not a diamond-bearing country.—Detroit News.

Spiders Slaves to Ants

Green tree ants, which, it is said, make spiders their captives, and force them to spin webs with which leaves are bound together for their nests, were found in large numbers on an expedition into tropical Queensland, Australia, by Capt. C. H. Wilkins, who was collecting natural history specimens for the British museum. Captain Wilkins was unable to substantiate this story by personal observation, but obtained some of the ants for a more detailed study.—London Times.

Not Worth It

On the stand in Traffic court was a wealthy merchant. He had been arrested for speeding. To hear him tell it to the judge he drove the car as a careful mother pushes along a baby carriage, never exceeding four miles an hour.
"Huh," said an acquaintance after he got on the stand and made myself out an old woman just to save $5.

Altogether Different

"Women change their minds?"
"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "When we were married Henrietta made me promise not to stay out late, and now she's indignant if I don't go to all kinds of parties and stay up till 1 o'clock in the morning."—Washington Star.

Mystery, Magic, Romance Before Old Fireplace

What a spot of joy and creature comfort is the fireplace during cold spells! Time was when the open fire was a very important factor in the heating of homes in these northern parts; but the furnace, with its hot air, hot water and steam, more efficient and infinitely more prosaic, has put the fireplace in the background for utilitarian purposes.
The passing of the fireplace is to be regretted. Too frequently the modern home does not have this adjunct of comfort. It isn't really needed, so why have it? That's the American spirit of the practical carried to an excess. The fireplace isn't actually required for heating purposes, although it is a mighty aid in carrying the peak load when the mercury drops down to 20 degrees below. But are we to have only what we actually need?
Sitting up in front of a sizzling radiator or over a register when belches forth its heated air is not to be compared with lounging before an open fire with a good book, to doze or read as desire prompts. There is mystery, there is magic in the open fire. There is a heightening of creature comfort to the point where it has curiously odd and satisfying mental effect.
Let the storm rage outside, let the northern blasts assail window and door, but here we have our answer right before our eyes, and not brought up to us through secretive pipes, which are no more romantic than a water main. No, give us a cold wave, an open fire and a good book and we ask no odds of the most favored in southern climes.—St. Albans Messenger.

Production of Rosin Is One of Oldest Industries

Production of turpentine and rosin is one of the oldest industries of America, records of exports dating as far back as 1662, showing these to have been among the first products exported by the early colonists. While they were originally used in shipbuilding for caulking wooden vessels and protecting rope rigging, thus gaining their name of "naval stores," chemistry has developed an amazing number of uses for rosin and turpentine, making them indispensable in a large number of important industries. Soap manufacture leads in consumption of rosin, with surfacing of writing and printing paper ranking second. Rosin is also extensively used in the manufacture of varnishes, water-proofing compounds, roofing materials, leather dressings, lubricants, waxes, linoleum and electric insulation. Turpentine is an important industrial factor as a thinner for paint, solvent for inks, waxes, rubber and water-proofing compounds, as well as in chemical and pharmaceutical combinations.

Worms Found in Vast Numbers on Glaciers

The snow worm is not familiar to the general public. These little creatures have been called snow eels and they are frequently found on the snow-clad slopes of the ranges of mountains in Oregon and Washington.
According to the well-known ichthyologist, Dr. E. W. Gudger, they are not eels, but true worms. They are scarcely more than a half-inch long and only one sixty-fourth of an inch in diameter and are jet black in color. Since they are sometimes found in vast numbers upon beds of snow, they present a rather startling spectacle.
Upon making a study of the matter Dr. Gudger found that the best account of the phenomenon was given in 1899 by Dr. J. P. Moore of the University of Pennsylvania, from specimens collected by H. G. Bryant upon a glacier in Alaska. The notes of the latter quoted in Natural History contains this interesting passage:
"During the month of June and the early part of July, while the snow is comparatively dry, they appear about 4 o'clock in the afternoon on the surface and move sluggishly about, remaining during the night; but when the sun appears in the morning they again burrow into the snow. As showing their sensitiveness to heat I frequently observed them active wiggling as soon as a piece of snow containing them was taken in the hand."—Detroit News.

Origin of Expression of "Mind Ps and Qs"

No very satisfactory explanation has ever been given for the origin of the expression, "Mind your Ps and Qs." Some say the admonition originally referred to children learning the alphabet, or to printers setting type, from the fact that "p" and "q" have a similar appearance and are easily confused, especially in a font of type.
An odd origin of the expression is given as follows: In the old-time barrooms it was customary to do a credit business. In the accounts "p" stood for pints and "q" for quarts. Naturally when it came to settling up it was advisable for the customer to "mind his Ps and Qs."
Still another explanation is ventured. In France during the reign of Louis XIV, huge wigs were worn and curls and bows were made with great formality. In making the bow a short step was taken forward. Hence dancing masters would tell their pupils to mind their "pieds and queues," "pied" being the French word for foot and being pronounced almost like our letter "p."—Detroit News.

First American Shoemaker

The first recorded American shoemaker was Thomas Baird, who arrived on the second voyage of the Mayflower in 1628. He was under contract with the Plymouth company to make shoes for the colonists. One Philip Kirtland, a Welshman, came to Lynn, Mass., in 1636, and John Adams Dagry, a celebrated shoemaker, settled there in 1730; so Lynn got an early start in the industry for which it is famous.

Under favorable conditions the plow will turn over about 25 acres a day.

AMERICANS HELP STRANDED BRITISH ROUND-WORLD FLIERS

Penderleith, British round-the-world fliers, at Corfu, where the aviators were compelled to land in a deserted lagoon because of engine trouble. The Lowes, who are in charge of Near East Relief activities at Corfu brought a tent, blankets, and food to the fliers.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Ruth Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowers of Belle Vernon, and Ralph Maple, son of Mrs. Harry Maple of North Charleroi, which took place in Wellsburg, W. Va., February 15, 1924. Mrs. Maple is well known in this locality having been employed for some time in Steel's Grocery store at Speers. The groom is connected with the American Steel and Wire mill at Donora, and is well and favorably known in Charleroi.

Miss Clara Boyce of Belle Vernon entertained with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Case in Belle Vernon last night, in honor of Miss Maude Kibler of North Charleroi, whose marriage to J. J. Miller of Donora will be an event of the near future. Music was the main diversion of the evening, after which the hostess served a delightful three-course dinner. A color scheme of pink and white was very attractively carried out. Miss Kibler received a number of beautiful gifts.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Jerome's Catholic church at 9:30 this morning by the pastor, Rev. Father W. D. Fries, when Miss Johanna Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Lookout avenue, became the bride of William Jones of Chicago, Ill. The bride wore white georgette with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white roses, showered with lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Genevieve Hanger, as maid of honor, who appeared in a gown of coral georgette with picture hat to match. William Delaney of Donora, served as best man. The wedding procession entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march with Mrs. Bertha Klost at the organ. During the ceremony Miss Thea Aschman sang, "Ave Maria" and "O Promise Me." Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the Elks club where a wedding breakfast was served. Covers were laid for 35. The young couple will leave this evening for Chicago, where they will make their future home.

Got Off Easy

The town bum had been arrested on suspicion, as he always was when a minor crime had been committed in Hickville. On the most recent occasion Zeke was defended by a young lawyer who was making his maiden speech. The case was lost and Zeke was sentenced to ten days and fined ten dollars. "Thanks, Mr. Judge," Zeke said with a relieved countenance and better courtroom presence than was usual. "Thank me," he said. "What do you thank me for?" But Zeke was innocent of witicism. "I sure thought my character and that boy's pleading would hang me."

One of the Meanest

The mean man ate a good meal at a restaurant and then, when he had finished, dropped a ball of dirt on the floor.

"Walter," he said, as he paid his bill, "I just dropped two half dollars. Find them for me, will you?"

The waiter disappeared under the table and in a short time emerged very red in the face.

"I've found one of them, sir," he said. "Thanks," said the man as he pocketed the coin and rose. "When you find the other keep it for yourself. tip, you know."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE CAPITAL OF ALBANIA TO FALL

Athens June 3.—Unconfirmed dispatches from Albania declare that Tirana, the capital, is about to fall into the hands of revolutionists.

Athens, rumor factory, for the Balkans, has received varied reports of progress of an uprising in Albania during the past 48 hours. The reports seem to emanate from rebel sources. Apparently some form of revolution has been attempted aimed against Tirana and Durazzo.

One report said the American minister to Albania had been asked to leave the country, his offense being that he had sought intervention by the league of nations. The report did not say who had made the request. One of the first rumors in the wake of every Balkan uprising is concerned with a slight or insult to the American minister, the purpose of spreading the report being to enlist sympathy of the United States with the side opposite to that accused of the atrocity.

An example of the reports is the following: "Eight hundred fugitives arrived in Bari," the occasion for their being fugitives and whence they came is not mentioned.

There were persistent reports yesterday of fighting outside Scutari, and it was said 32 government supporters and 18 insurgents were killed.

Another example of the rumors that reach Athens and are circulated from here is one received this morning from Bucharest, totally unconfirmed, which says that General Averescu, Rumanian military leader, has requested King Ferdinand to dismiss the cabinet; "otherwise it will be overthrown with 50,000 bayonets."

St. Peter's Chair

The festival of St. Peter's chair celebrated with great solemnity and splendor in St. Peter's Rome, had its origin in the Eighteenth century—possibly even earlier than that time. The chair, old, plain and worn, on which St. Peter is said to have been pontificated, is enshrined by a magnificent throne, supported by four gigantic figures and mounted upon a tribune decorated by Michelangelo. The throne stands in the great nave behind the altar of St. Peter's.

The Venetians once claimed to possess the chair of St. Peter, but it was discovered about a century ago that this supposedly sacred article bore the inscription: "There is but one God and Mohammed is His Prophet." It is supposed that this chair was brought from the East by the Crusaders.—Detroit News.

Cheeta a Fleet Animal

For short distances the cheeta is supposed to be the swiftest quadruped. It is not possible to ascribe the honor definitely to any particular animal. The cheeta, which is found in Asia and Africa, is a large tropical cat, slender of body and limb. It is from three to four feet long, and of a pale, tawny color, marked with numerous dark spots on its sides and back and almost white beneath. It resembles the leopard, and is often called the hunting leopard. The animal resembles the dog in docility. Its fur is not sleek like that of typical cats. It has a long tail, which is somewhat bushy at the end.

BOND BROKER IN 2000

An eastern financial journal has brought to light an interesting bond. It is dated 1865 and was issued on a horse car line. The bond is for $1,000 and is carrying its third set of coupons, having been twice extended from its original maturity in 1880. Although the property has long ago been abandoned the bond is still "going" at four per cent and is an underlying hen of the New York city railways. It has paid $3330 in direct interest. If all interest payments had been promptly reinvested at five per cent, the original investment in 1865 would have returned almost $25,000 up to the present time. From 1865 to 1900 the bond carried seven per cent interest, but since that year it has been reduced to four.

Not Worth It

A little boy was given $5 by his uncle. He had heard that a certain make of car is very cheap and he wrote to the factory for one. They were so amused that they asked him to visit them. His aunt took him to the factory.
"Go round," said the manager, having taken the money, "and choose the car you like best."
He wandered around, looking at the various specimens.
"Well?" said the manager, after he had made a thorough inspection.
"Please, I'd like my $5 back," said the boy.

No Demand

An elderly man approached the president of a big New York firm and asked for a job. The president, himself a youth, looked the applicant over thoughtfully and finally said: "Sorry, sir, but I can't use you. You appear to be more than thirty."
"Don't you want a man of some sense?" asked the applicant.
"Personally, yes. But I have stockholders and a board of directors to consider. The cry, you see, is all for ginger, vim, pep. There seems to be no demand for sense."

Would They Stay?

"Who's in that henhouse?" shouted the irate owner, as, hearing a noise in the night, he rushed out and aimed a shotgun at the door. "Speak, or I'll shoot!"
"Ain't nobody in here," responded a faint and trembling voice from the inside. "Ain't nobody, sah, 'ceptin' just us chickens!"—Exchange.

Ancient Egyptians Had Mummies at Their Revels

It was not unusual in the ancient days of Egypt's splendor for the tombs of the kings to be re-entered after burial and the body carried out to have a part in some significant ritual.

Death was a foremost thought in the Egyptian mind, and his daily life was a continual preparation for the life hereafter. In the height of his revels he took pains to remind himself of the seriousness of life and the omnipresence of death.

He held great feasts where death was perhaps furthest from his mind of all subjects. But suddenly the music ceased, dancers slunk away to darkened corners, fountains sat back half-sobered while wine goblets remained untouched.

From the far end of the hall came a somber procession; two or three slaves strained at heavy ropes which were attached to a cumbersome sled-like affair. Borne along on this was a many-colored painted coffin, the mummy case of a dead Pharaoh that had been rifled from the tomb for the occasion.

Slowly the procession entered, passed on and disappeared while the guests looked on with staring eyes. After this sobering intermission the revelry was resumed, perhaps not as riotously as before the appearance of the mummy.

First American Ship Was Built at Buffalo

The first ship built in the western hemisphere was the Griffin, the keel of which was laid in 1679 by workmen in the employ of LaSalle. It was a bark of 60 tons and the keel was laid and the ship completed at the mouth of Cayuga creek, not far from the city of Buffalo's present site. It was armed with a battery of seven small cannon and some muskets and floated a flag bearing the device of an eagle. In August of the same year LaSalle embarked with his colony and sailed for the western end of Lake Erie. Thus began the Great Lakes commerce. She had a good voyage to Green Bay, but in the meantime LaSalle's creditors, thinking him lost, were selling at Montreal all his possessions. To prevent this he loaded the ship with rich cargoes of furs and sent it back with orders to return immediately.

LaSalle then explored the western country, but, returning to Fort Frontenac, he learned that the Griffin had been shipwrecked.

INCOME TAX FOLK WILL HAVE NAMES BEFORE PUBLIC GAZE

New York, June 3.—The ancient Egyptians published their history in hieroglyphics 48 feet high and the American Bible Society published 30,000,000 Bibles last year, but all publishing records are due to fall when Uncle Sam starts publishing income tax returns in March, 1925.

The new tax bill, signed by President Coolidge, provides that the name of each taxpayer and the amount of income tax he pays shall be posted upon the bulletin board of the post-office where he lives.

Somewhere, out in the Mojave desert or down in the Florida swamps may live an American who doesn't care how much money his neighbor earns, but it is doubtful.

Already the interest of the country has been caught by the fascinating prospect of finding out "what that young Mr. Newswid really makes" and "whether the Smiths can afford that new car."

Wall Street brokers are making arrangements to go into the thing from a practical point of view and get on lists of prospective clients whose actual incomes will be made available under the new tax law.
